EIGHTH ARMY ADVANCES ON 40-MILE AREA

Tokyo, Jan. 29.—(P)—Chinese communists died fighting in their mountain foxholes today. They resisted to the bitter end a wary but seemingly relentless advance within 10 miles of Seoul in eastern Korea.

Associated Press correspondent M. Becker reported 130 Reds were killed on one hill alone. On eight were captured.

Air strikes and artillery raked enemy positions, but U. N. fantrymen finally had to scramble up the frozen hillsides and blast out the Reds with grenades and rifle fire.

The U. S. Eighth Army reported advances up to three miles along a 40-mile western front.

In the area north of Suwon, 38 F-51 fighter-bombers dumped 8,000 gallons of fiery napalm (jelled gasoline) in the heaviest Mustang assault attack of the war. Red troops and buildings were hit.

Early estimates were that 100 Reds were killed and 240 buildings destroyed or damaged.

Becker said intelligence officers estimated that the entire 50th Chinese Communist army and three North Korean divisions now were in the combat area, holding strong positions. At full strength these forces would total about 60,000 men, but losses are believed to have cut them considerably.

The Chinese were supported by artillery. Ground troops called for an air strike to silence the enemy guns.

One Red company was chopped off on a hill on the Suwon-Seoul highway. After the fight 50 Chinese bodies were counted.

The remainder of the company had been wounded or routed.

An Eighth Army communiqué said that U. N. forces, with a line extending almost 100 miles from the west coast through the rugged mountainous central sector, felt they were in the strongest position they had held since the Chinese entered the war last November.

Chinese and North Korean Red Army units had set up road blocks and set up road

Spot Checks Indicate Food Prices Are Stationary Following The Freeze Order

By The Associated Press

Food prices apparently weren't budging an inch up or down today following the government's freeze order of late last week, spot checks of retailers showed.

But consumers seemed generally unimpressed. Mrs. Eileen Perry, an early-morning New York shopper, offered this typical comment:

"The government froze too late. They locked the stable after the horse was stolen. I think the prices are awful, and that they should have been rolled back to at least six months ago."

Some food retailers agreed. Grocers said their prices were sticking to the levels at which the government froze them last Friday. Items not covered in the freeze also appeared to be holding steady.

In Washington, economic stabilization officials indicated roll-backs on some items were forthcoming.

Colonial stores, a large food chain, said at its headquarters in Atlanta that it planned no changes in prices of any items, at least not during the early part of the week.

"We plan on holding the present prices as of the first of this week," a spokesman said. "What happens after that, we don't know."

In Pittsburgh, checks indicated food prices were holding the line, and that retailers expected no changes in prices of items not pegged by the government order for several days at least.

Highest Award for Volunteer Scout Leaders Presented Two Men at Recognition Dinner

Two Warren men, Francis M. Caughey and Don F. Lauffer, have been presented Silver Beavers, the highest award for a volunteer Scout leader which the Warren Council, Boy Scouts of America, is able to make.

The Beavers were presented at the Scout Council's annual recognition and awards dinner, held Friday night at the YWCA. More than 275 Scout Leaders and their wives attended.

Caughey has held the positions of County Council member, council commissioner, council vice president and council president from 1932 through 1940, and also has been active in the council's finance program. He also is an active member of Warren Rotary Club, serving as its president, and is a charter member of Joseph Warren Lodge, F. & A. M.

Lauffer has been an active Scouter since 1932, serving as Troop Committeeman, Neighborhood Commissioner, as well as assisting the training committee and the organization and extension committee. He also served for several years as Scoutmaster at Starbrick. He also is a member of the Odd Fellows, advancing to the position of District Deputy Grand Master.

Lauffer has been particularly active in the past year in organizing Boy Scout Troop 5, and Explorer Post 5, both sponsored by the Warren Lodge of Elks.

Lauffer, along with Frank Seely, also presented a pin award for organizing a new scout unit. The presentations were made by Charles Frantz, chairman of the organization and extension committee. Lauffer received his pin for aiding in the formation of Explorer Post 5, while Seely was honored for his work in organizing Cub Pack 32 at Clarendon.

Final award for the evening was a Boy Scout statuette, which was presented to C. A. Babcock, who served for the past two years as Scout Commissioner, highest post for a volunteer leader in the council.

See Scout Award pictures on page six of this issue.

Those who attended the dinner heard an outstanding talk on the theme, "Strengthening Liberty," which was presented by Edward Joseph Allen, Jr., Youngstown chief of police, national president of the Fraternal Order of Police for three years.

Allen, one of the most effective and forceful speakers heard here in many years, likened community and national life to the familiar Biblical parable of the prodigal son.

Citing that the prodigal first had a "gimme attitude" and was interested only in personal gain instead of service, the police chief said we have been wasteful with our natural resources and more important, wasteful of human character with its detrimental effects of widespread juvenile delinquency and disintegration of the home.

He said the prodigal then hit the inevitable depression when he was hungry and friendless and declared that when a nation gets in that condition, either it goes out of its senses altogether or comes back to its senses. He cited Germany, Italy and Russia as nations where the people sold their birthright for a piece of bread to be

Six Dead In Wake Of Severe Storm

By The Associated Press

The worst ice storm in years injured hundreds and left six dead in western Pennsylvania.

The week-end storm hit the Pittsburgh district hardest. However, all sections of the state either had rain, sleet or snow.

Early today Pittsburgh district hospital reported they had treated 369 persons for injuries suffered in falls on ice-glazed streets and highways. Eighty-three of the injured were admitted, most with broken bones. Southside hospital in Pittsburgh alone treated 33 patients with arm fractures.

All of the six dead were killed in auto wrecks. Three of them were in the Pittsburgh district.

The weather bureau predicts no immediate relief from winter's latest onslaught. Temperatures dropped below the 20-degree mark in many sections early today.

Snow flurries, followed by colder weather tonight, is predicted for western Pennsylvania. Freezing rain changing to snow or sleet, is expected in the eastern part of the state.

Orders Deferment For College Group

Washington, Jan. 29.—(P)—Selective Service today ordered an extra 30-day draft deferment for an estimated 30,000 college men who are members of mid-year graduating classes.

The postponement was ordered to enable some graduating seniors to get jobs in essential industries. College students are deferred by law from induction until they complete their current term. Today's action amounts to an extension of that deferment for the mid-year graduates.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, acted after conferences with educators and representatives of industry showed a definite need for graduating seniors in some essential fields of industry.

Corry, Jan. 29.—Earl J. Crosby, 21, of Bear Lake, died at 6 p. m. Saturday as the result of injuries sustained when a truck he was driving was struck by a locomotive at Corry. Crosby died in Corry Memorial Hospital, where he was admitted at 2:15 p. m.

According to Deputy Coroner Lawrence Davidson, Crosby and a brother, Gerald, were in a truck of the Thompson Maple Products Company, where the dead man had been employed, and saw the engine approaching.

Election Calendar May Be Revised To Make Provisions for Soldier Ballots

Harrisburg, Jan. 29.—(P)—Pennsylvania's 1951 election calendar will need a complete revision if a proposed new absentee voting law for servicemen goes on the books this year.

An absentee voting bill now before the senate would move the 1951 primary up from Sept. 11 to June 19.

The measure will have to get prompt attention by the general assembly since it contains provisions to start primary election machinery rolling by March 10. This would be the first day to secure signatures on nomination petitions.

The measure, if enacted into law, also will advance by three months the hour of decision for political leaders to put candidates in the field for municipal jobs.

The proposed law would advance from July 3 to March 20 the last day for the secretary of the Commonwealth to transmit to county election boards list of qualified political parties.

It also fixes April 9 as the final day to secure signatures on nomination petitions and April 28 as the last day to register for the primary.

The absentee voting bill is an administration-backed measure and was prepared by the state elections bureau.

There is little doubt concerning its ability to gain passage. The only point of controversy over the measure centers around the date of the primary. Some county officials feel June 19 is too early and would like to have it moved back a few weeks.

The bill would make no change in the date of 1951 municipal election which falls on Nov. 6.

The measure closely follows the absentee voting law in effect in Pennsylvania during World War Two.

Nearly a thousand young persons, their parents and other residents of the community crowded the Warren Youth Canteen at its official opening program Saturday night.

Parents were there to inspect the newly decorated building which has been christened "The Spot" by the teen agers who will use it as a supervised recreation center.

Impressive dedication ceremonies were held on the balcony overlooking the dance floor. Officers of the canteen accepted from civic leaders of Warren four keys which stood for the club's high purposes.

The above picture taken by a staff photographer, gives some idea of the huge crowd of adults and youngsters who gathered at the building to witness the ceremonies and participate in the program later.

Dr. Robert S. Steen, pastor of Presbyterian church presented the key of Fellowship to the Canteen president, Nula Cheronis. Kenneth Carlson, President of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, presented the key of Growth to the vice president, Bob Foley. The key to Leadership was given canteen secretary Ellen Henderson by Nat W. Drake, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; and the key to Success was presented by Attorney Harold Hampson to Leroy Salerno, youth treasurer.

Tribute was also paid to the men in service who helped work on the old miniature golf building now transformed into the "Spot". Allen Anderson, of the Phalanx fraternity, presented a plaque honoring the servicemen to

Asian-Arab Bloc Modifies Formula To End Korean War

Lake Success, Jan. 29.—(P)—The Asian-Arab bloc today modified its Korean peace formula once more in an effort to head off the United Nations approval of American demands for an indictment of Communist China as an aggressor.

The revised plan was submitted shortly after the general assembly's 60-nation political committee met this morning. It calls for an immediate seven-power conference on the China-Korea problem, but adds this important provision:

The representatives will, "at their first meeting, agree upon an appropriate cease-fire arrangement in Korea and after it has been put into effect they will proceed with their further deliberations."

This provision was inserted after numerous delegates objected strongly to any Far Eastern discussions while fighting was in

Erie Firm Has Contract For Hauling Mail Between Lake City and Kane Terminals

The Post Office Department has disclosed that the contract for hauling the mail on a star route in place of the discontinued trains, 970 and 971, was awarded to the William Trucking Co., of Erie, which submitted the low bid of $9,980 among the several truckers who submitted figures.

The firm started in today hauling the mail twice each day six days a week, between Erie and Kane. The schedule calls for the truck to leave Erie at 7 a. m., arrive at Kane, at noon. On the return trip it will leave Kane at 3:45, arriving at Erie at 8:45 p. m. The schedule will be followed every day except Sunday. The traveling time of the two regular passenger trains, Nos. 580 and 581, have been adjusted slightly to permit them additional time to handle mail at the various stops. Beginning today a star route was established between Kane and Emporium, similar to that between Erie and Kane.

One day early in the week Carlton Gay and Ed Munson made the trip from Warren to Emporium, taking pictures of the train, along the route. Mr. Gay has a large collection of old railroad pictures, timetables and other curios.

FORMULA TO BE RELEASED IN FEW DAYS

Washington, Jan. 29.—(P)—Price and wage stabilization officials set to work today on the delicate and tedious job of releasing some of the pressures behind the dam they built last Friday to hold back living costs.

Their task is to remove as quickly as possible the acknowledged inequities which resulted when the government on Friday night froze most prices at peak levels between Dec. 19 and Jan. 25 and all wages as of Jan. 25.

The Wage Stabilization Board prepared a statement expected to announce that large groups of employees are exempt from the wage freeze. These would include 4,000,000 federal, state and municipal workers and also employees of very small firms—all exempt from stabilization during World War II.

There are whole industries exempted from price controls under the defense production act, too. These include newspaper and publishing fields, radio, television and similar communications, utilities, carriers and movie theatre admissions. Whether wages in those industries will be controlled is up to the lawyers, already holding their heads.

Besides the statement on exemptions, the wage board headed by Cyrus S. Ching is driving to come out with a formula—probably on Tuesday or Wednesday—for granting blanket approval to increases along the pattern developed last year. In major industries this generally was for a 10 per cent wage hike—sometimes with pensions and similar benefits.

The board may pick another percentage, but increases in steel, coal, electrical manufacturing and aluminum industries helped to mold the 10 per cent pattern. It was generally indicated that the formula would allow negotiated increases up to 10 per cent above Jan. 15, 1950 levels.

Despite these differences, the board hoped to make a decision today, if possible. Should the public members—Chairman Ching, John Dunlop, of Harvard University and Clark Kerr of the University of California—cast their votes either way, it would decide the question. But Ching is anxious that this all-important policy step be unanimous if possible.

Price Administrator Michael V. DiSalle also was pushing his program along.

The fifth program-meeting of the Warren County Historical Group was held in the Warren Public Library at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, with 30 persons participating. The need was felt for a chairman of this informal group, and Mrs. William Vogt graciously consented to undertake the office, with authority to name assistants.

Mr. Vogt called upon R. Pierson Eaton to give a brief picture of the older cemeteries of the county. His remarks were most interesting, for, as he said, no one knows too much about these old cemeteries, and he referred to an outstanding volume published by Mrs. Lucy Cowan, in which a serious and enlightening study had been made of county cemeteries wherein had been interred the remains of our citizens of Revolutionary War service.

Mr. Eaton began with the first known burial in Warren, or rather an unknown burial, discovered in 1850 when foundations were being dug for Warren Savings Bank building; the skeleton was not that of an Indian, but perhaps of a member of the Holland Land Company or of a trader. No one knows when or where the first known burial took place; while the county was being settled miscellaneous burials took place on farms or along the river banks. In 1828 two inlets were reserved at Fifth and Water streets, for cemetery purposes; expansion of this plot justified in 1862 the opening of Oakland Cemetery across the river. A now obliterated burial place existed on Jackson street extension; and Mr. Eaton gave interesting observations regarding this and many other burial plots.

A curious fact is that not too many cemeteries were church-connected. Perhaps 25 in all have responsible upkeep, another 15-20 are only about half-way, being about half grown over. One township is working on a plan whereby all its cemeteries by incorporation may be taken care of by the supervisors and thus given opportunity for both maintenance and expansion.

A sketch should be made of all burial places, indicative of burials both known and traditional. Cemeteries contain a chain of history, on their headstones; families de-

Vehicle Driven By Bear Lake Man Hit On Corry Crossing

Earl Crosby, 21, of Bear Lake, this county, was admitted to the Corry Hospital in a critical condition at 12:15 o'clock Saturday afternoon suffering from undetermined injuries sustained when the truck he was driving was demolished by a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train at the Shady avenue crossing in that city a short time before.

Earl and his brother, Gerald Crosby, 27, were reportedly returning from the Thompson lumber mill on Shady avenue in Corry in a truck owned by the Thompson Maple Products Co.

It could not be immediately determined whether Earl, who was driving the Chevrolet truck, failed to see the approaching train or whether the truck skidded in front of the locomotive.

Gerald, who escaped injury, was reported to have leaped free of the truck while Earl, who also jumped, was injured when the truck was hurled into him as he struggled to get out of the way.

This report came from the locomotive fireman who reportedly witnessed the mishap. Hospital attaches said the young man's condition was undetermined but it is believed he suffered serious internal injuries. He was unconscious when admitted.

Engineer C. J. Anderson of Erie succeeded in stopping the west-bound freight train E-1 about 300 yards west of the crossing.

Mrs. Lee Rogers, of Youngsville, was called upon to speak of the connection of her family with the early history of Pittsfield, and she gave a most interesting picture of pioneering families. Her great-grandfather came from Massachusetts and purchased land near Sugar Grove on Dalrymple Hill, and finally settled there in 1811.

Andrew Dalrymple was born in Scotland in 1684, his son David in 1713. Four of David's sons were in the Revolution. Mark Dalrymple, a descendant, was instrumental in having a church built at Pittsfield, with understanding that it would be a community church; in 1854 the building was completed and to every one who gave $25 or more great-grandfather David donated a lot in the cemetery behind the church.

The first cemetery in Pittsfield was located where the school now stands. Three schools were established. The first building in Pittsfield was constructed by James Andrews, north of the schoolhouse, on the north and south road. Mrs. Rogers named the former stores and houses along the streets, with their owners, and in nearly every instance her comment was, "and it also burned down." There are a few original houses remaining; Pittsfield's history for some time was one of burning of houses and business places.

Mrs. Rogers exhibited photographs, lovely pieces of silver, a map of Riverside cemetery, map of the land during the oil excitement, and other valuable souvenirs.

A work meeting of this Historical Group is planned for Wednesday evening, February 7, at 7:30 in Warren Public Library, when further plans will be announced.

University Doctors Report On Study Of Antihistamines

By The Associated Press
Boston, Jan. 29.—Three antihistamine cold remedies tried out by Boston University doctors in tests on 1,214 persons had about as much effect, the doctors said, as plain milk sugar pills.

The study by Professor Francis C. Lowell and Dr. Irving W. Schiller of the B.U. School of Medicine was described by the University as one of the largest of its type ever attempted in the United States. And the New England Journal of Medicine, publishing the survey, said the care taken in the study of an intelligent co-operative group "left no doubt whatever of the results."

The journal, in its editorial, said it was "an honest and conscientious attempt to determine the value of antihistamines in the common cold. . . . There was absolutely no evidence to indicate that the antihistamine had any effect on the occurrence, duration of severity of any of the symptoms ascribed to the common cold."

(On Monday of last week two other studies of antihistaminic drugs on colds were made public with reports that the drugs improved some cold symptoms, although no claim was made that the remedies cured the colds. One survey by four American doctors, printed in a Swiss medical publication, said reports of relief after antihistamine treatments were 18.5 percent higher than reports of improvement from persons who received a "fake" remedy. The other study covered tests on 1,008 Lewton Reformatory inmates in Washington, D. C., where relief of symptoms and sometimes shortening of colds was reported.)
The doctors said: "We were un-

LINCOLN AND GETTYSBURG

By RALPH LANE

Four score and seven years ago . . . that is the way the glorious flow of words known as the Gettysburg Address began. Yes, Lincoln's speech came at a halfway point in the history of this free nation. It represents a landmark between the Declaration of Independence and the present.

Today the United States defends itself against foreign malice and domestic treason. On the day that Lincoln spoke at Gettysburg, the fortunes of the young Republic were at low ebb, too.

In 1861, 13 Southern States seceded from the federal Union. The issue was whether America was to be one nation or two. The North quickly responded to the challenge, and the War Between the States began.

The South, banded together as the Confederate States of America, inflicted defeat after defeat on the Union forces, and finally, in June, 1863, invaded the homeland of their Northern enemy. Under General Robert E. Lee, the Confederate Army approached Gettysburg, Pa.

French Premier Seeks Aid for Indo-China

French Premier Rene Pleven, right, will meet with President Truman in Washington to discuss Communist-threatened Indo-China and other world problems, including coordination of Franco-American policies toward Russia's diplomatic maneuvers. French forces in Indo-China—some 150,000 strong—are in a serious plight after four years of fighting Communist-led guerrillas. The one-time rag-tag rebel army has, in the past year, been transformed into a modernly-equipped, smartly-officered, disciplined fighting force after training in Red China by Chinese veterans and Russian officers. Indo-China, key to all southeast Asia, would, as map shows, be a rich prize for Reds.

REDS EYE RICH PLUM—Symbols on Newschart above show important natural resources of strategic Indo-China, target of stepped-up aggression by Ho Chi Minh's rebel Communist troops. In addition to resources on map, it is known that iron, tungsten, manganese and many other useful minerals are to be found in virtually unprospected areas of the country.

Tanks Move to the Rescue of Trapped G.I.'s

THE ROAD TO SAFETY for G.I.'s of the Second Division is blocked during the Korean withdrawal. Moving to the rescue are tanks and Tommies of the British Middlesex Regiment (pictured above). With air and artillery support, the Tommies broke the block and the G.I.'s streamed through, but their casualties were not slight. To their losses the Tommies had to add casualties of the previous day when they had unsuccessfully attempted to break the block without the aid of tanks, artillery and airplanes.

Ten Warren Boys Have Reunion At San Antonio, Tex.

Mr. and Frank D. Cole, of the Cole Furniture Store, 2025 Pennsylvania avenue, east, have received an interesting letter from their son, Mel, in the Air Force at Lackland Field, San Antonio, Tex., from which the following interesting excerpts are taken:

January 17, 1951
Dear Dad, Edythe, Marion:
Well, I was just over getting a bottle of chocolate milk at a little stand, and guess what! I met about ten boys from good old Warren. One of them was Don Stover, of Stoneham, also the Anderson twins. Boy, it was good to see them.

Wrestling matches are on again tonight. I saw Charles beat Oma in a boxing match the other night. You should see my hair. I got a haircut when I first came here and it still isn't an inch long, that's how short they cut it. I've been here 21 days already, though it doesn't seem that long. I'm still living in a tent and it's as cold as ever, and I'm hoping to move into barracks soon. I just got through sewing my clothes. What a job I did, Oh, brother!

When you send that candy you promised me will you put a ball point pen and a lead pencil in with it, so I won't have to borrow a pencil every time I want to write.

How is Ed getting along lately? Tell him I said, "Hello." Yesterday I was telling the sergeant with whom I work what I was going to do when I got out, and he said that I would probably join back up. When these four years are up, I'm afraid everything will be different in Warren. I've been told you feel like a stranger in your home town when you first go back, but I've got plenty time to worry about that. Well, there's a good story on TV right now so I guess I'll listen. I mean look at it.

Love,
Mel

OLD COUGAR SKIN

A cougar skin on display in Tidoute gave rise to rumors Friday that the strange beast sighted in that region had been shot. However, Bill Anderson of the Tidoute Hotel said the animal was still at large. The skin was an old one which was brought out to show residents what a cougar or mountain lion looks like. Several men have seen the animal reported loose in the woods and from their description residents think it is a cougar. A hunt formed for Saturday with a number of persons participating.

NEW STABILIZATION ORDER
Here are a few of the highlights of the government's new stabilization order placing an immediate freeze on wages and prices, as announced Friday night:
It freezes all wages as of midnight last Thursday, and almost all prices at their highest levels during the period from last Dec. 15 to Jan. 25.
It is applicable immediately.
It is designed to hold back rising prices and wages while government officials work out ceiling formulas aimed at staving off dangerous inflation.
For prices, it specifically prohibits buying or selling "in the regular course of business or trade" any commodity or service at a price higher than that charged during the Dec. 15-Jan. 25 period—"regardless of any contract or other obligation."
For wages, it prohibits paying or receiving of wages higher than those in effect last Thursday. New employees must be paid no more than the Jan. 25 rate for the "jobs for which they were hired." Over-time, vacation and holiday pay, pensions, benefits, etc., also must be held at the level in effect Jan. 25.
Moreover, the wage regulation allows for appeals and the price order lists numerous exceptions and exemptions—especially of agricultural products sold on the farm.
Both were apparently drawn up with an eye to future adjustment—either up or down as conditions dictate.
Violations are punishable by fines up to $10,000, one year in prison, or both.
The freeze wrought swift reaction in many directions. In New York stocks bounded up $1,000,000,000, at Toronto they were the highest in 16 years, while in Chicago pit buying was active with prices up.
In Washington Price Chief DiSalle said the question of roll-backs will be taken up later on a basis of individual commodities. At the same time it was intimated that the wage freeze order, due today or tomorrow, is expected to deal with labor agreements which were arranged to become effective after the January 25th freeze date. This would include the recent 20-cents an hour pay boost agreement for John L. Lewis' miners which was dated for February first.

NEWSPAPERS STILL TOPS
George G. Steele, president of the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association in Chicago last week, at the annual gathering of the executives, said final 1950 figures will put newspapers "on top of the heap" the second straight year as the foremost means chosen by advertisers for telling their messages to the people.
"Don't let anybody ever tell you that any advertising medium can ever take the place of newspaper advertising," Mr. Steele, who is advertising director of the Philadelphia Bulletin told the association members.
"Everybody who reads, reads a newspaper. They read it when they want to read it and as long as they want, not just at 4:30 or 10:30 or some other scheduled time. They read it because they want to read it—and they want to every day."
Added note to Europeans who think that General MacArthur "provoked" the Chinese Reds to attack UN forces in Korea: American military leaders in Washington are reportedly convinced that Communist China, not Russia, actually mounted the first North Korean offensive against South Korea last June 25. They believe that implicit in this staging effort was the Chinese intention to intervene against the West as soon as it was clear the North Koreans had failed.
The community owes a debt of gratitude to those responsible for making it possible for Warren to have a completely equipped and well-organized youth center, such as was formally dedicated with appropriate ceremonies Saturday evening, with a capacity crowd in attendance.

Another red-letter event in the history of Scouting in the Warren area was reached at the Recognition dinner Saturday evening when well-deserved Silver Beavers were awarded F. M. Caughey and Don Lauffer for long and distinguished service in behalf of boys.

Your Out of Uniform, Soldier

Here And There
For many residents of the community, old and young alike, dedication of the Youth Canteen at the YMCA Saturday evening, must have seemed like a dream come true. There were those in the huge crowd, some to enjoy the program, others to participate, and still others among the interested citizens like ourselves, unable to attend because of conflicting engagements, who almost despaired of ever seeing such a much needed center provided for the youth of the town. When Jim Hengst, Dan Walton, Chuck Tranter, Allen Anderson, and a host of others banded together to convert the building originally erected to house a miniature golf course some twenty years ago into a place where teen-agers could assemble for entertainment and worthwhile and constructive programs. Dan Walton told us Saturday afternoon, when we dropped in to inspect the place, that from the time he first looked into the abandoned and cluttered building he started working on ways and means to convert it into use. This ambition received a big boost when Jim Hengst came here to take over as Boys' Work Secretary, and after Tranter with the Jaycees, Anderson, Milt Dahler, and the Phalanx Fraternity along with interested teen-agers, their parents and other adults became interested there was no longer any doubt but that Warren was to have a Youth Canteen that would not only be a credit to those who fostered the plan, but to the town in general.
Local politicians and prospective candidates are wondering about the possibility of an early campaign, since it is hinted at Harrisburg that the summer primary is likely to again be established on the third Tuesday in June, which this year, is the 19th, and if a proposed new act also follows the pattern of the military ballot law of World War II, the various election deadlines would be advanced accordingly. The last day for filing petitions for candidates would be moved to 71 days before the primary, throwing it in early April.
This And That: A move was on foot in Erie last week to boost the price of haircuts 25c from the present $1 figure to $1.25, if plans were not thwarted by the U. S. price ceilings order. . . . The Erie Junior Chamber of Commerce named its own president, Dr. James Weaver, as "man of the year", and Dr. Thomas Colley, district representative of Methodist church, former Warren pastor, and member of the five-man selection committee, was chosen to formally present the key and certificate to the physician. . . . A seminar on Atomic Energy for newsmen is being held at State College February 2-3. . . . Warren Episcopalians will be interested in the announcement of the appointments of an associate pastor at St. Paul's cathedral in Erie to assist Dean Francis B. Blodgett, in the person of the Rev. Joseph Hart, chaplain at the University of Texas, married and the father of three children. . . . The Meadville Parking Authority has decided to look into the possibility of retaining a traffic engineer to make a survey of the city's parking needs. . . . The Rev. William Chamberlain, assistant, had charge of services at Trinity Memorial Episcopal church Sunday in the absence of the rector, the Rev. Beecher M. Rutledge, who has been confined during the past week with a severe cold. The Corry Journal quotes Columbus township supervisors as reporting that they have been successful in using cinders and coal residue obtained from the generating plant of the Pennsylvania Electric Company at Starbuck for use on snow-covered highways, and in connection with the use of calcium chloride, as a substitute for cinders. The Journal says Chautauque county road employees intimate that the high price and damage done to cars is expected to hold back its wholesale use. . . . In spite of the fact that the date for the primary election is still a little over five months away the political pot is already starting to simmer with prospective candidates quietly informing friends of plans to run for office; it is safe to predict that the following Republicans will be seeking re-nomination at the June primary, Judge Allison D. Wade, Prothonotary Ralph Sires, Register and Recorder Don Schuler, Sheriff L. E. Linder, and at least one, if not two county commissioners; there will be other county offices to be filled, including treasurer; William E. Olney is expected to be a candidate for his present post as Democratic representative on the board of county commissioners. . . . Some pretty good sleighing is enjoyed in some parts of the county.

Irresponsible Criticism Swells U. S.-Allied Discord
BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Suppose the French government decided to pull out of Viet Nam, or what used to be called French Indo-China. Bear in mind that the French government hasn't decided to do this.
But just for the sake of this argument, assume that the French government should decide that, having spent $2 billion and sustained 19,000 French casualties trying to defeat Ho Chi-minh and the Viet-Minh Communists, there was no point in further fighting.
If the French should adopt any such surrender policy as is presented in the hypothetical case above, the howl of protest heard in the United States would be terrific. The French would be branded as unreliable allies. They would be accused of cowardice.
Turn this horrible example around, look at it from the other direction, and you will get some faint idea of how Europeans feel about recent suggestions that the United States get out of Korea.
Because of these irresponsible and thoughtless demands, European opinion has criticized the United States for wanting to quit, for being undependable and unwilling to stick to the bitter end. This is what comes of not being able to see ourselves as others see us.
It works both ways, of course. Americans have been unable to understand why the French and British have traded so extensively with Red China, while fighting Chinese Communies in Viet Nam and Malaya. And the apparent European heel-dragging on rearming against the threat of Russian aggression from the east has been incomprehensible.
So the mutual criticism may be all to the good. It should sharpen alertness to responsibilities in both Europe and America. But along with it, there should be a full appreciation of what the other fellows have been contributing to the world struggle against communism.
France has been fighting the Communies in Viet Nam for nearly five years, with 150,000 men. The British have had a force of perhaps half that strength in Malaya, in a less active guerrilla war. The United States has been in Korean fighting about seven months.
Budget-wise, France and Britain have been spending nearly as large a percentage of their national income on defense as the United States—eight per cent for the British and French against eight and a half for the U. S. On the new budgets for the coming year, this will not hold true. The $41 billion U. S. defense budget will represent 18 per cent of U. S. national income. The British $4 billion budget will be 13 per cent, the French $2 billion, 11 per cent.
Britain and France have universal military service. The United States is just considering it.
Britain is putting 1,000,000 men under arms, which is 2 per cent of her population of 50 million. One-fifth of the British forces are on garrison duty in some 20 countries overseas.
France is mobilizing 800,000 men in her armed forces. This is 1.9 per cent of her population of 42 million.
The United States proposes to increase its armed forces to 3,500,000 men. This would be 2.3 per cent of the U. S. population of 151 million.
So contributions of the three powers are about equal.
There are no hard and fast ratios on forces to be put into the European defense army as yet. But assuming the 60-division force idea is carried through, France would supply 20 divisions, with the United States and Britain supplying up to 10 each. Here France, with the smallest population, would carry the biggest load.
What these comparisons reveal is that it ill-behaves any of the politicians of any of the powers to throw accusations and recriminations at any of the others.

COAST GUARD SEEKING ENLISTMENTS IN ITS FOUR-YEAR ACADEMY PROGRAM

WEST BERLIN POLICE BEING GIVEN RIFLES AS IN THE RUSSIAN SECTOR

THE ODD MAN—Zellio Toppazzini (12) of the Rangers finds himself outnumbered, outflanked and outplayed by five Toronto players in his lone drive for a goal in the second period of a game in New York. Maple Leaf players include Gus Mortson (3), goalie Al Rollins (23), Max Bentley (7) and Joe Klukay, in background.

KEEPING UP WITH THE REDS—Because the Soviet authorities in Germany have equipped German police with rifles and sub-machine guns, West sector commandants are now doing the same. This police sergeant is showing his unit how to load the newly-issued French rifles during their first training exercise.

BEGINNING TO REIGN—Sonja Hulme, 18, displays some of the charm that won for her the title of Queen of the 11th Annual Rodeo in Palm Springs, Calif.

LEARNING THE ROPES—U.S. Coast Guard cadets man the rigging aboard the square-rigged training ship, the Eagle at the Academy in New London, Conn. The four-year Academy program leads to a bachelor of science degree and an ensign's commission and the Coast Guard wants more young men.

WATCHING THE WASHING—As a delighted audience of Korean children gather around him, Pvt. Frank Maddox, Balsall Heath, Birmingham, England, washes his clothes in a South Korean stream. This is about the full extent of the fun being had by Korean children these dangerous days.

WELCOME SIGHT—To hard pressed ground troops, the sight of a ground support fighter, loaded with bombs or rockets, streaking overhead to blast enemy positions is the most welcome sight in the world. These infantry-engineers, on a training mission on Long Island, get a close look at the USAF's new swept-wing fighter, the Republic F-84F Thunderjet, as it passes overhead during flight tests.

REGIMENT'S SWEETHEART—GIs of the 7th Cavalry Regiment in Korea have named 20-year-old starlet Polly Bergen, shown holding the regiment flag in Hollywood, their official sweetheart. Polly's new movie is about the regiment.

PEKE-A-BOO!—This pyramid of Pekingese pooches was exhibited at a dog show in London, England. The top pup is either anticipating a delicious morsel of food, or he's in a plain sassy mood. The photographer got the full benefit of the Peke's tongue in this shot of canine pulchritude.

Smith Mill Near Selkirk Is Totally Destroyed By Fire

The Ruel H. Smith sawmill near Selkirk burned to the ground Friday night with an estimated loss of between $5,000 and $10,000.

Pleasantville firemen, neighbors and workmen moved a quantity of lumber and salvaged that. As lumber had been hauled away soon after it was sawed, only about 10,000 feet was on hand.

Cause of the fire was not known but the blaze began in the part where a stove was placed. No one was on hand when it started sometime before 9 p. m.

Henry Ongley of the Selkirk road (Route 1, Grand Valley), who lives near the sawmill site, said he and Louis Hassaway saw the light from the fire about that time. They went down to investigate and were the first persons on the scene.

Although part of the building lumber was green, the flames raced through it in short order.

Mr. Ongley and others attempted to bring out a tool box when a five gallon can of gasoline set go, scattering the burning fuel about. No one was burned, but the tool box remained in the building to be destroyed with the remainder of the contents. The equipment included the power plant and saw.

This was the second mishap to the sawmill, neighbors said. It was put in there last November only a short time before the big snowstorm and the building roof collapsed under the weight of the snow. The mill was rebuilt and work was progressing anew when the fire broke out Friday night.

Many persons gathered at the scene and did not disperse until after 1 o'clock Saturday morning. By then the blaze was virtually out and there appeared to be no danger to the stacked lumber.

The sawmill is part of the Ruel H. Smith Enterprises.

Jamestown Man To Have Hearing On Fraudulent Charge

Charles L. Chapman, of Jamestown, N. Y., entered a plea of guilty to a charge of fraudulent conversion and furnished $1,000 bail for his appearance at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Tracy M. Greenlund on Monday, February 5, at 2 p. m. He was arraigned Friday afternoon, after waiving extradition to Pennsylvania.

Chapman was turned over to Sheriff L. E. Linder on Friday. He had originally refused to waive extradition after being arrested in Jamestown on two warrants issued on complaint of Ruel H. Smith, of Warren.

Smith charged that a load of lumber, valued at about $600, disappeared while enroute to the Sterling Corporation of Jamestown, and said that he was informed that Chapman attempted to sell the lumber at Erickson's Mill, between Falconer and Frewsburg. The lumber has not been found, and Chapman has refused to give any information to authorities as to its whereabouts.

Selling of cars and their equipment and fuel has become a $25-million-a-year business in the United States, about 20 per cent of all U. S. retail trade.

Referring to the communistic infiltration into the United States, Chief Allen said it was a mistake in the first place to recognize Red Russia in the society of nations, but since it is too late to undo that mistake, we can call a halt to the theory of still doing business with them.

The speaker then focused attention on the gangster influence in our present day community life. He said gangsters and thieves have the same type mentality as communists in that both have a total disregard of constituted law.

"We had to go to war to stop international brigandage," the officer declared, "and we are now at war with an internal foe. The underworld is not something that has just happened by accident. It's a way of life, just the same as the community is a way of life. We know of the abuse of liberty in the form of communism, but few of us know of the criminal underworld with its utter contempt for law."

Returning to the parable of the prodigal, Chief Allen said this country must also return to moral and spiritual leadership. "If we want to preserve this country we must return to observance of law more so than a return to an enforcement of law," he added.

Dr. Carl E. Whipple, president of the Warren County Scout Council, presided at the dinner and LeRoy Schneek, WNAE program director, served as toastmaster.

Invocation was offered by Father William Maloney, and several selections were sung by the a capella choir from Warren high school, under direction of Carroll Fowler. Group singing was led by T. Sheridan Baker, with Lloyd Van Tassel as accompanist.

Taking part in special ceremonies were: Cub Scouts Herschel Hester, Don Taft, Jr., Danny Otterbein, Dick Wilson, Ulysses Smith, and John Aldrich, and their Den Chief, Bobby Stevens, of Pack 48, Den 3, of the East Street School; Cub Scout Baker of Den 4 of the same pack; Scout Dave Swanson, of Elks Troop 5; Explorers Ralph Sechrist, Clair McCurdy, William Berry, David Glassman, Dick Lundahl, Charles Johnson, and Jack Timm of Post 12, First Lutheran church; and Explorers Bill Wehner and Bob Koebley of Elks Post 5.

All of the women attending were presented rose buds through the courtesy of Warren and North Warren florists, and souvenir tumblers were made available for the Scout leaders through the courtesy of the Knox Glass and Bottle Co.

The pips are the symbols that stand for the various suits—spades, hearts, diamonds, and clubs. The more pips there are on a spot-card, the higher the value of that card. For example, there are two pips on a deuce, three pips on a trey, and so on.

French Premier In Capital For Cold War Strategy Talks

Washington, Jan. 29—(P)—French Premier Rene Pleven arrived today for cold war strategy talks and President Truman told him he hopes to prove the United States is the "real friend" of France.

The president greeted the visiting French leader at Union Station a few hours before they were to begin conferences on world problems.

Pleven came here reportedly seeking assurances from the president that the United States will retaliate immediately with the atomic bomb in the event Russian armies invade France.

Mr. Truman, Secretary of State Acheson, Defense Secretary Marshall and most of the cabinet were on hand to meet Pleven on the dark, rainy morning.

The 49-year-old French leader shook hands warmly with the president.

Mr. Truman and Pleven met on a roped-off side street, surrounded by police and secret service men, about a half hour after Pleven's train pulled in from New York.

Mr. Truman arranged to entertain Pleven at lunch at the Blair House and to start their formal talks at the White House later in the afternoon.

At Acheson's suggestion, Mr. Truman called several officials to a noon meeting at the White House to prepare for the discussions with Pleven. Among those on the list for that gathering were Acheson, David K. E. Bruce, Ambassador to France and Donald R. Heath, American minister to the associated states of Indo-China.

A note on the White House calling list said Acheson "felt the president should have this meeting before discussions with the French again this afternoon."

On arriving in New York yesterday by plane from Paris, the French premier said the "great purpose" of his visit is to make the "cooperation between the United States and France even closer than it is in every field within the Atlantic Pact."

ney, as his acting general counsel. Disalle said last night he will order "substantial rollbacks" in prices of a number of items as soon as his staff can get to it. Steel scrap may be one of the first. And he promises that "before long" there would be controls on fresh fruit and vegetables, fish and other sea foods.

Meat again loomed as a major problem for control, as it was during and immediately after World War II. The price order last week freezes meat prices, but not livestock.

Housing expeditor Tighe E. Woods also stepped into the picture, calling for "very tough" rent controls to match the price-wage freeze. He said rents are going up rapidly and he is powerless under the present law to halt them.

progress in Korea. The United States has been particularly emphatic on this point.

The new trimming to the old proposal was the addition of a clause at Canada's suggestion, to make a Korean cease-fire the first order of business at the proposed conference.

Dragons Put Up Stiff Battle Before Bowing to The Unbeaten Bradford Floormen, 46 to 38

Warren high school basketballers played their hearts out against the top flight Bradford five at Beatty gym Friday night and came perilously close to dumping the Owls from their lofty perch as one of the two major unbeaten high school teams in the state. Final score favored Bradford, 46 to 38, but the outcome of the contest was in doubt right down to the final minute of play. Bradford showed here with the best "team unit" it has had in years, and gave every indication of being a power to reckon with in determining a Class A champion for the Keystone state.

The Dragons also were in top form, except for some erratic passing, and could easily have been leading the Section 2 race had they played the same type of ball against their league opponents as they did against the Owls.

Pre-game guessers had rated Bradford as a top-heavy favorite—some said as much as 21 points—but the Dragons were out to win. The Massmen got the jump on the scoring and counted four points before Bradford broke the ice with a free throw. The lead saw-sawed back and forth in the first period with the visitors showing a 13-7 advantage at the end of the first stanza. The Owls succeeded in widening the margin another three notches in 14-11 scoring in the second frame and left the floor at halftime with a 27-18 advantage.

Four and five point margins were all that separated the teams throughout most of the third frame and the first half of the final stanza. With but four minutes remaining to play, Bradford was ahead, 40 to 35, and both teams were striving to grasp the victory banner.

In the next two minutes of play, Jim Owens counted two points for Bradford, while Paul Gordon notched a free throw for Warren to make the tally, 42-36.

Then Ed (Sparky) Adams slotted a free throw, Gordon hit for two points for Warren, and Dick Cottillion converted a charity toss to make the score 44-38, in favor of the Owls. Final two points for the McKean Counts came on a field goal by Adams. Cottillion displayed an uncanny ability of taking care of the ball under pressure in the final minutes, while scoring honors for the evening were shared by the red-headed Adams for Bradford and Letterman Gordon for Warren. Each had 12 points, representing five field goals—mostly set shots—and three free throws.

Bradford scored with precision tactics, especially from the foul line where the record showed 10 good shots in 13 tries. The Dragons' shooting from the black line won them only eight points in 17 tries. This is one weakness that has dogged the Warren club all season.

The Dragons go to Franklin tomorrow night for a Section 2 league game, and another tough battle is in prospect despite Franklin's poor win-loss record. In a league scrap Friday night, the pace-setting Oil City club was able to beat Franklin by only a single point, 57-56. At the same time, Titusville suffered its first league setback at the hands of Meadville, 59-37.

Kay Gibson Cops Annual Singles Tenpin Championship at Penn

KAY GIBSON

Striking out in the final frame to put the finishing touches on four big games last night, Kay Gibson won the championship of the annual Women's Singles Tenpin tournament at the Penn Bowling Center.

Kay went into the final four-games of the 16-game test trailing last year's champion, Vi Sterling, by 110 pins. Vi was the leader at the three-markers mark. Kay opened with a nifty 183 and added line scores of 196, 187 and 162 for a big 728 total. Vi ran into trouble with splits and chops all evening and came up with games of 167, 156, 141 and 133 for a 597 total.

The firing was so close that Vi led Kay by eight pins at the start of the 16th game. Vi finished second with 2590, Peg Finley third with 2565 and Rose Juliano was fourth with 2539. Other leaders in the championship bracket (scratch scores) were Marge Larson, 2516; Bernice Thomas, 2510; Millie Burman, 2504; Louise Moorhead, 2483; Alpha Shira, 2479; and Red Walsh, 2385.

Mrs. Gibson also won the handicapped honors with 2899, but inasmuch as only one prize can be won by a contestant, Caroline Tridico took handicapped honors with 2819, edging out Donna Nelson's 2803. Other handicapped leaders were Louise Moorhead, 2771; Alpha Shira, 2767; Millie Burman, 2760; Helen Dodge, 2754; Vi Sterling 2734; Rose Juliano, 2731; and Marge Larson, 2708.

The eight top girls in Class A and also Class B now meet in a matron game test, using the Peterson system of scoring. Class A includes all girls with averages of 150 or better while Class B are those with averages of 149 or under.

Tidioute Defeats Youngsville Squad In League Match

Alpha Hi-Cagers Defeat North Warren

Alpha Hi-Cagers defeated a North Warren five 57-51 in a non-league scrap at the North Warren Community House Saturday night, with Denby Hedges, high scoring guard for the Hi-Y, setting the pace with 23 points.

Ledeberg and Solock led the way for North Warren with 16 and 14 counters respectively. North Warren outscored the Alpha boys 42-34 in the first half, but lagged behind 13-5 and 10-4 to lose the game in the final period.

In ancient Roman times pictures of a tradesman's tools often were carved on his tomb.

State Hospital Is Victor Over Grovers

The State Hospital basketball squad, paced by A'Harrah with 19 points, chalked up a 47-40 triumph over a Sugar Grove team in a game played at the North Warren community house.

Other big scorers included Cone and Kohl with 14 and 13 points totals, respectively, for Sugar Grove, and Solock with 12 points for the victors.

Warren bowlers gave a good accounting of themselves in the first Knights of Columbus state tenpin tournament in firing over the weekend at Philadelphia.

The Five Dents team, one of four from here entered in the competition, fired a 2618 total to shoot into second place. The top spot is held by an Altoona squad with 2647.

A 2590 total posted by the East Side Fruit squad was good enough for fourth place. Totals of the other two Warren clubs were Grutz's Welders, 2343; and Bill's Welders, 2266.

Firing for the Five Dents were James Thomas with 578, Frank Fadale with 512, Al Chiaramonte with 458, John Salamon with 553, and Sam Gerardi with 517.

Members of the other teams and their totals were: East Side Fruit: Frank Gerardi, 516; Myers Papalardo, 519; Dr. James Giunta, 571. Paul Coppola, 481, and Pete Juliano, 503.

Grutz's Welders: Frank Graziano, 471; Louis Barone, 423; Ralph Papalia, 405, Mike Gotto, 514; and Tony Fazio, 530.

Bill's Welders: Pete Nichols, 495; Joe Nichols, 441; Bill Pasquarette, 496; James Zock, 441; and Louis Chimenti, 423.

Warren bowlers also ranked high in the doubles, and all events. Dr. Giunta and Paul Coppola lead the doubles with 1163; Frank Gerardi and Papalardo are in second place with 1137; and Sam Gerardi and Salamon are fourth high with 1081.

In the All events, Salamon is first with 1690, and Frank Gerardi is second with 1676.

Chapter 16

BERT, thoroughly annoyed with his sister, was all for letting her go her own way. But this time it was Clayton Howell who protested. He had not expected to remain ashore long, he explained.

He had seen Algiers during his stint in the Army. Therefore, he would be happy to accompany Miss Hasbrook back to the ship. "She speaks only English," he pointed out, "and I don't think she should go alone. She might have difficulty making herself understood." Only his eyes, as he said good-bye to Molly and Bert, betrayed his disappointment at having to forego the excursion.

Molly, watching them go, experienced a new feeling of respect for Clayton Howell. He was every inch a gentleman, she decided. She had known it all along, but up until now it had not struck her as anything out of the ordinary.

It was obvious that he had wanted very much to stay. But he had gone rather than let Patricia Hasbrook, an American girl whom he scarcely knew, walk unescorted through the streets of a strange foreign city. And perhaps because he believed that she, Molly, and Bert wanted to be alone. Personally, Molly felt a little miffed at Bert. After all, Patricia, stinker that she was, was his sister, his responsibility. In a way, Clayton Howell's gallant gesture made Bert seem—well, yes, small.

All of this was forgotten, however, in the fascinating experience of exploring Algiers with Bert. It was all the more exciting because they were doing it mainly in foot and completely on their own.

They prowled around through the principal streets, peering into shop windows, meeting all manner of people dressed in all manner of costumes; occasionally asking questions, but getting unfeeling answers, and finding their way around as best they could.

Presently, without knowing just how they got there, they found themselves in the old city where the streets were circuitous and steep, and in some places so narrow that there was scarcely room to walk arm in arm. In a way, it was like wandering through the native quarters of Istanbul, but she had never ventured there except as a member of a large party who only wanted to see the high spots and hurry on.

IT WAS by sheer luck that they suddenly found themselves in the Rue de la Kasbah, the quaint street whose five hundred steps led up to the old citadel. Hand in hand they climbed the terrace steps, trying to count them but giving up before they had gone very far. As they descended they passed strange windowless houses whose only visible means of support was one another and whose overhanging balconies suggested lovers' trysts, prompting Bert to say:

"Gee, it must be tough on the local Romeo, climbing those ramshackle balconies. Remind me to kiss you, sweet, when we get to the top of this mountain."

He was like that—combining nonsense with romance. She would have to get used to it. Molly supposed, though she did wish he wouldn't talk as though he were doing her a favor by falling in love with her.

With no consciousness that time was passing and that they were due back at the ship long before dark, they wandered leisurely through the marble courtyard, peering into the arched galleries that surrounded it. They saw the chair of the martyred Christians, and the famous pavilion where the indomitable dey, striking a French Consul with a fan, precipitated a war that lost his people an empire.

"It just goes to show the havoc one hasty act can cause," Molly pointed out, after reading the English inscription on the plaque. "If I'd given it a second thought—"

"If you're thinking about me," Bert said, "and the way I fell in love with you all of a sudden, and want you to marry me—well, I don't need any second thought. Of course, if you're not sure of yourself—"

He did not finish the sentence. Instead, he put an arm around her and kissed her ever so gently on the lips. Perhaps it was the gentleness of that kiss, or it might have been the pleading note in his voice that touched her. But somehow, in that moment, Molly believed she was sure of herself—and of him.

And so by the time they left the citadel they had come to an understanding. Yes, they were in love. They would be married just as soon as Bert could convince his father that he was ready to stop playing and settle down.

They must have stayed at the citadel much longer than they realized, for when they began to retraced their footsteps Molly was disturbed to see that it was almost sundown.

"I should have thought of that," she told Bert. "There are no twilight in this part of the world. The sun goes down—and then, all of a sudden, it's dark."

Chapter 17

THEY hurried along as fast as they could, but by the time they were at the foot of the long terrace, it was quite dark and the old-city night life had begun. There was no time to do any shopping; no time to do anything but grab a taxicab and get back to the ship by some manner of means. The Continental would be sailing before midnight. Moreover, Captain Rosario, with his ultra-conventional ideas, would be wild when he learned they'd separated themselves from the crowd.

With no sense of direction they walked through the narrow, winding streets in search of a cab, getting deeper and deeper into the native quarter. Skirting around snake charmers, street magicians, peddlers hawking their wares, passing an endless variety of strange people—city and desert Arabs, men in odd-looking uniforms, children in girl-colored dresses, and women in the somber wrappings of Islam.

They walked on for a while, but there was still no sign of a taxi. Bert tried to make inquiries of the most likely-looking pedestrians, by means of gestures and simple monosyllables. But the only English word anyone seemed to know was "okay," which was peculiarly unhelpful in the present emergency.

Several passersby, when accosted, showed a willingness to help. They listed politely while Bert explained his wants as best he could. He drew diagrams with his hands and even made strange honking noises in imitation of a taxi horn. The would-be helpful ones spoke a few unintelligible words, made a few unintelligible gestures, said "Okay," and walked on. Others simply stared at Molly and Bert, who, with unconcealed amusement, some with open hostility, making it clear that they were intruders and unwelcome.

"I hope you don't think I planned this," Bert said, looking down at Molly with contrite blue eyes. "I know I said we'd get lost, but you must have known I was joking."

"Why, of course, Bert," Molly tried to keep the panic out of her voice but she knew it was there.

"Besides, we aren't really lost. Even if we were, nothing could happen. After all, this is 1949, not the Dark Ages. And there's a taxi just around yon corner, Molly-o." Bert added in a determined attempt to be gay. "I heard it honk just a minute ago."

Molly laughed shakily, trying to match his optimism. But she knew that sound she had just heard was that of a child tooting a native horn. She had seen the child with the horn in its mouth, ducking into a darkened doorway.

She knew, and she believed Bert knew, that they were lost, really lost in the native quarter of a strange city where anything that happened in the Dark Ages could and sometimes did happen in 1949. She wished she could regard their predicament in the light of a scene from the movies with the proverbial nick-of-time rescue. But two years in the caste-conscious Middle East had convinced her that such was not always the case. It was not only foolhardy it was downright dangerous for a boy and a girl to tear around in native quarters after sunset. However, if Bert could be optimistic about it, the least she could do was to cooperate.

So she made herself say, "Yes, it's just like a scene in the movies; any minute now I'm sure we'll be rescued." But she had never been less sure of anything in her life.

AFTER walking for what seemed like miles through tortuous streets that were growing noisier and more crowded by the minute, Molly and Bert finally came to what appeared to be a large native cafe or coffee house. They could hear the hum of voices inside, the sound of music and singing.

"Well, here's where we take a chance and crash in," Bert said. "In a place this big there's bound to be somebody who speaks some thing beside pig-Latin. There might even be a telephone, though I suppose the operator will speak nothing but French. However, I don't like a cab and hope for the best. I'm getting pretty good at honking, aren't I?" he added, still trying to be gay. "Might be a help to me when I start looking for a job."

A man, wearing a red tarboosh and ill-fitting Western clothes, came forward and spoke to them—first in French, then in carefully precise English. He was a man approaching middle age, slim like most of his people, but muscular. His ready smile was reassuring, and most important of all, Molly and Bert, he spoke English and would be able to understand them. His name was Ahmed, he told them; he was the proprietor here. He was delighted to meet the Amereekani. What could he do for them? He would be only too happy to serve them in any way he could.

No, he had no telephone, he apologized. Business had not been too good since the war ended and the soldiers went away. But he would send a runner out to find a taxicab for them, though it might take considerable time. Meanwhile, the Amereekani were to make themselves as comfortable as they could in his humble cafe.

After what seemed ages to Molly, Ahmed stepped close to Bert—too close, Molly thought. "Your taxicab is waiting, effendi. You will go now?"

She breathed a deep sigh of relief when at last they were safely inside the cab.

Smith Enterprises Buys Buildings On Pleasantville Road

Announcement of the purchase of two buildings by the Ruel H. Smith Enterprises from the General Machine Shop on the Pleasantville road Thursday marked the completion of the sale of all the buildings and equipment of the latter company.

The buildings purchased by the Smith Enterprises were leased by the industry last spring for two years with an option for two more years and the right to purchase. The corporation, which is occupying the main building and using the frame building as a warehouse, has exercised the option far ahead of schedule because it expects to expand facilities immediately.

Electric wiring devices and electronic components for television and radio are assembled at the plant. Production began June 19, 1950, only a few weeks after the Chamber of Commerce announced the new industry was locating in Titusville. The payroll recently listed about 180 persons, chiefly women.

Another brick building where the General Machine Shop formerly concentrated its activities was purchased some time ago by Arthur Kalmach of Pleasantville. That building was rented by Harold A. Ewing of the Fieldmore road, Route 2, Titusville, who bought the balance of the available equipment and formed the Hillcrest Crankshaft and Machine company.

Freeze On Prices and Wages Is Not a Frozen Freeze, But Guaranteed To Melt

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington—(P)—Relax and hope for the best. The freeze on prices and wages isn't a frozen freeze. It's guaranteed to melt a bit.

For example: Wages for some people will be allowed to go higher although they were frozen at where they were on Jan. 25.

And the prices of some foods are going to be higher, too. This was all understood when the freeze was put on last night.

The government acted in a desperate rush to stop the mad dash of living costs. Congress and the public were yelling for action.

So the ESA—Economic Stabilization agency—didn't have time to work out what was fair for every item and every person in detail.

It decided to slap on the freeze first and worry about the details later, hoping the freeze, incomplete as it is, would put a big brake on inflation.

Now, although living costs may still go up a bit, they'll probably inch along where before they were galloping over fences without a bridle.

A number of workers haven't received raises since living costs began to go crazy. And they couldn't get one under a flat freeze.

So how do you take care of workers who might suffer an injustice, with wages frozen, when businessmen were making bigger profits through hiked prices?

Work out some kind of formula which says some thing like this: "Anyone who didn't have a wage increase of so much before prices were frozen, is entitled to that much."

But Ching's board wasn't able to work out this formula before Johnston decided there couldn't be any further delay in freezing prices. Yet the law says when prices are frozen, wages must be frozen.

So what to do? Johnston took the ball away from Ching and simply said prices and wages were to be frozen as of midnight, Jan. 25.

Later Ching made it clear some wages would still go up, when his board has worked out a formula for raising wages for some workers, those who'd otherwise suffer unfairly under a general freeze.

So when that formula is worked out the freeze on wages will melt a bit.

The law which gives the government power to freeze prices says the price farmers charge can't be frozen until they reach parity.

Parity is a figure set by the government to be sure farmers get a decently livable price for their products.

Royal Company Purchases a New Factory On Coast

The purchase of a modern new factory in Los Angeles has been announced by J. K. Salomon, president of the Royal Metal of California and general manager of the parent corporation, Royal Metal Manufacturing Company, Chicago, owners of the former DeLuxe Metal plant in this city. The new plant and grounds, located at 5950 Avalon Boulevard, Los Angeles, allow future expansion of the manufacturing facilities and office space. The building new houses a spacious showroom and a group of offices, all air-conditioned, as well as considerable factory space.

Martin A. Miroff, vice-president of Royal Metal's West Coast corporation, said that the offices of the new building would be fully staffed and operating by the end of January and that all machinery should be installed by March 1st.

Royal Metal will continue to operate its West Coast subsidiary, Hudson Beauty Furniture Company, Los Angeles, but will close its former Royal Metal California plant, also located in Los Angeles.

During 1950 Royal Metal purchased the De Luxe Metal Furniture Company, one of the country's largest manufacturers of steel
